

CONTRIBUTORS

Panayotis G. Agelarakis (M.A.) is a recent graduate of Columbia University's Graduate School of Arts and Sciences, specializing in International Relations and International Law. His academic focus includes International Organizations, Cultural Heritage, and the Aegean and Eastern Mediterranean. Currently, Agelarakis serves as the editorial assistant for the American Journal of Contemporary Hellenic Issues and the Journal of Modern Hellenism, both through with the American Hellenic Institute Foundation. Previously, he gained experience as a trainee at the European Union Delegation to the United Nations, where he worked with the team dedicated to the United Nations Security Council, focusing on Middle Eastern and North African affairs. Agelarakis has had several peer-reviewed works published, including research on "International Law and Cultural Heritage Looting and Destruction in Cyprus" and "International Law on Cultural Heritage: The Benefit of Updating the International Community's Classification of Perpetrators of Cultural Heritage Looting and Destruction." In the fall of 2023, Agelarakis will pursue a J.D. to further his education.

Ilias Chrissochoidis (<https://web.stanford.edu/~ichriss/>) is a scholar, author, composer and pianist. He received his Ph.D. in Music History from Stanford University where he has been lecturing since 2005. A leading Handel researcher, he has received fellowships from the Stanford Humanities Center, the American Council of Learned Societies, the Library of Congress, and from UCLA, Harvard, Yale, UT-Austin, and McGill universities. Since 2012, he has been researching Stanford's modern Greek archival collections and has authored dozens of articles on his documentary discoveries. He is the compiler/editor of Spyros P. Skouras, Memoirs (1893-1953) and of two complementary volumes of documents from the "Spyros P. Skouras Papers."

CONSTANTINE P. DANOPOULOS, a native of Greece, is Professor Emeritus at San Jose State University (SJSU). Dr. Danopoulos served as chair of the Political Science department at SJSU. He has written or edited 11 books, dozens of articles and book chapters, as well as numerous conference papers. His publications deal with civil-military relations, national security, poverty, the bureaucracy, democratization, quality of democracy, and the environment. He served as election observer in Bosnia (1996) and editor of the Journal of Political and Military Sociology. In addition, he served as the West Coast associate editor of Mediterranean Quarterly as well as on the editorial board of Armed Forces and Society, Journal of Southern Europe and the Balkans, and the Journal of Political and Military Sociology. From 1993 to 1999 he served as president/chair of the Research Committee on Armed Forces and Society of the International Political Science Association, and Fulbright Scholar to Greece (2008). Dr. Danopoulos is the recipient of the President's Scholar Award, the Warburton Award of Excellence in Research, and thrice Pi Sigma Alpha Professor of the year.

John Frangos received his B.A. and M.A. in history from Queens College, with his Master's degree thesis on the Greco-Turkish War of 1919-1922. He later received his Ph.D. in history from NYU. In 1997, his doctoral thesis was published by Fairleigh Dickinson University Press under the title: "From Housing the Poor to Healing the Sick: The Changing Institution of Paris Hospitals Under the Old Regime and Revolution." His original career was in healthcare administration, for which he has an M.A. from C.W. Post College and twenty years professional work experience, mostly in hospitals. Currently, Dr. Frangos serves an adjunct assistant professor at Lehman College, Bronx, NY where he has taught courses in early modern and modern Europe as well as courses on the history of disease and medicine.

Constantine Hatzidimitriou, Ph. D. received his doctorate from Columbia University in Byzantine, Ottoman and Modern Greek history. He was a Gennadius Fellow at the American School of Classical Studies in Athens, Educational Counselor of the U.S. Consulate in Thessaloniki, and a professor and administrator at Anatolia College. He is a Fellow of the American Hellenic Institute in Washington D.C., and has taught at various universities in the NYC area, -- most recently at Queens College's Center for Byzantine and Modern Greek studies. Among his books are American Accounts Documenting the Destruction of Smyrna in 1922 and "Founded on Freedom & Virtue": Documents Illustrating The Impact in the United States of the Greek War of Independence. He has also published many studies in scholarly journals and contributed chapters to various books. Currently he is completing a project concerning Greek-American schools and is engaged in a study of American Philhellenes during the Greek Revolution, and a long-term study of Byzantine Central Greece.

Ismini Lamb and Christopher Lamb are the authors of George Horton's biography. Ismini is the Director of the Modern Greek Studies Program at Georgetown University where she has taught and researched Greek language, history, and culture for more than 30 years. For the past nine years, she has researched and spoken about George Horton's legacy. Christopher has served as a Foreign Service Officer and senior official in the Department of State and in the Department of Defense. He is an award-winning author with numerous publications. Their biography, The Gentle American: George Horton's Odyssey and His True Account of the Smyrna Catastrophe, is available from Gorgias Press, Amazon and other vendors in hardback, and in an eBook edition from Gorgias' publishing partner, De Gruyter.

Stavros Terry Stavridis was born in Cairo, Egypt to Greek parents and migrated to Australia with them. He has also lived in Portland, Oregon. He is an academic/author/historian/public speaker. He has written many articles on Asia Minor covering actual historical events and historical fiction for the National Herald. In addition to being author of several books and contributing book chapters in modern Greek history. Stavros has lectured at universities and community college levels in Australia and the US.